

Great Community Schools

Having smaller, community elementary schools is based on a specific philosophy. Like a snowflake, each school is unique to its neighborhood, yet serves as the heart of the town. Essential services and relationships connect to families through our schools. Health and social services, youth and community programs, friends and neighbors. Community schools offer a host of opportunities and built-in supports to give students all the tools they need to learn and grow. When communities and schools work as one, students attend consistently and are actively involved in learning, families are more engaged, and our students' sense of belonging is secure. Students are healthy – physically, socially, and emotionally – knowing they live and learn in a safe, supportive, and stable community. If you have an incoming kindergarten student, get to know your great community school at one of these Kindergarten Information Meetings.
